

Dear Families,

Another busy week! Next week we will have transition day for all classes. New reception intake will be here in the morning only on Friday. Children will arrive at their usual classes, be registered and move to their new classes. At the end of the day, they will leave from their new classes and you will have the chance to meet their new teacher.

Some pupils enjoyed a great afternoon at Cotswold Care home playing boules with the residents. It was a lovely way to spend time together and share experiences.

Phoenix Outdoor Explorers enjoyed fire building and toasting marshmallows.

Thank you to FOSPS for another brilliant workshop today for Fathers and More. They make such a difference to our school. Please consider joining the committee to keep them running!

If your child has a birthday and would like to celebrate that in school, we discourage sweets/cakes from being brought in but we welcome a book donation which we add a label to and share in assembly. Amazon.co.uk

Alvescot Dog Show is a fantastic community event and urgently need commitments of help in two key areas to plan the event properly.

Moving/setting up/taking down equipment –

Friday 2nd October, 2-3 hours late afternoon – moving equipment;

Saturday 3rd October, 2-3 hours in the morning – setting up the field;

Sunday 4th October, 3-4 hours late afternoon/early evening taking down the equipment and returning to the Village Hall/lock up

4 - 6.15 Mon - Fri. Term time only

WHAT HAS MY CHILD BEEN LEARNING? THIS WEEK?

Cygnus exploring floating and sinking. In maths we predicted how many glass beads our silver foil boat would hold. It was 19!

Tucana writing diary entry based on the book 'The Way Back Home' and learned the difference between volume and capacity.

Phoenix learned about mummification, completed artwork in the style of Lowry and learned how to ask 'how are you?' in French.

Pegasus explored co-ordinates; completed some creative writing; deepened our learning on particular worldviews.

Warning of TikTok trend which can cause serious burns

A trend which involved placing squishy toys in a microwave is going viral on TikTok, but there are concerns around the potential for serious burns. Because of the silicone outer layer, children can't feel how hot it is inside, so when squeezed it then bursts and can cause damage.

The NHS advises to call 111 if your child has a burn or scald and you are not sure what to do. If they get a burn or scald that is very large or deep, is on the face, genitals or bottom, the NHS advises to contact your nearest A&E or to call 999.

RoSPA urges parents and carers to talk to children about the dangers of copying online trends and to reinforce that microwaves are not toys.

More information can be found on the BBC's website.
